PSHE

| | |
|-------------------------------|--|
| Intent – Our Rationale | We believe that PSHE is at the heart of all learning. A child who is comfortable in their own skin, who can talk about and identify how they are feeling, a child who knows what is right and wrong and who understands their role in the community. This child will be able to tackle challenges head on, will be able to celebrate and learn from their mistakes, will show others empathy and support others helping to create a positive learning environment. It is these skills we strive to promote through this area of the curriculum. Our approach encourages mindfulness, tools to promote their own wellbeing and understanding how the learning powers are part of a limitless learning experience. We know that good mental health will mean that our children are ready to learn. Children who are their best selves and who will learn to the best of their capabilities. Knowing that the path is not always smooth means that we empower our children with tools to tackle these situations. |
